- Suspect Age: 21-years-old
- Suspect Residence Location: 4313 Garst Mill Rd. - Apartment G
- Charges if Applicable: Reckless driving on private property.
- The road was not blocked to traffic
- Alcohol and/or drugs were not a factor.
- Seatbelts N/A
- Weather was not a factor in the crash.
- Additional Remarks: At approximately 2:30 p.m., Roanoke County police were notified of an incident involving a motor vehicle at Garst Mill Apartments - a woman had backed her 2001 Chevrolet Malibu into an apartment building and at least one person inside the apartment had been injured. Police have charged the driver of the vehicle, 21-year-old Yasmeen Jacobs, with reckless driving on private property. Police have determined that Jacobs was leaving the complex in her vehicle when she struck a tree head-on in the parking lot. When she put the vehicle in reverse she apparently lost control of the car and rolled back striking an apartment building. The vehicle went through a wall of the apartment building and into a bedroom. The vehicle stopped when it struck a bed that was occupied by Patricia Hughes. The vehicle did strike Hughes, who was taken to the hospital by a family member. Her injuries are non-life threatening. (Hughes' husband and grandchild were also in the apartment and were unhurt). Jacobs was taken to the hospital. Her injuries are non-life threatening.
